Resuscitate, Recover, Mobilise

The State of the Art is changing.....

You have told us you want more interaction with the speakers, more engagement, better networking, and clearer take-home messages. We have listened. Sessions will be planned to allow more debate and clear clinical learning points. There will be more opportunities to mix informally with experts and other delegates. Interactive sessions, social media and open-access online resources will let you get the answers you need to translate the latest research to your clinical practice.

NEW FORMATS-NEW TOPICS-NEW FACES

- Critical care at the front door: working with EM
- The state of the art in point of care imaging
- Emerging concepts in severe hypoxia & critical bleeding
- Current UK trials
- Updates in acute and speciality medicine
- The science of muscle wasting and rehabilitation
- How to implement early mobilisation in practice
- Dogma and common sense in critical care
- Integrating palliative care with MET teams and ICU
- Big data and the future of critical care
